

YOUR MISSIONARIES

JOHN AND KIM O'MALLEY

Saturday, February 10, 2018

Dear friend and supporter of our ministry,

Every Pastor and church struggles to find missionaries who are the right fit for their church. They search for missionaries with the right philosophy, who are going to the places which match their church's missions philosophy, and for those who will extend their church's reach of the Gospel. Thank you for facing these challenges and leading your church to invest in the Great Commission. Thank you for supporting Kim and me in the work God called us.

Kim and I are grateful for your support because, without you, we could not preach the Gospel to the Lost. Without your investment, we could not assist missionaries on the field. Without your partnership, we could not help churches build their missions programs. Without your participation, we could not serve newly-started missionaries in taking their first steps in ministry. Without your prayer, we could not guide prospective missionaries in getting from their calling to the field.

We need you. We are thankful for you. We pray for you.

In January, I participated in a missionary's commissioning service. I met this missionary during his college training. Many of you prayed when I took him on his survey trip to the Solomon Islands. Today, he is serving there with his wife and son. Pray for this family; they are the Deatricks with World Wide New Testament Baptist Missions. They are pictured here.

In January, I met with prospective missionary about service in a rural mountain area in Peru. Her village is a 24-hour bus ride from Lima. She is seeking direction about a missions agency to help her church send her to the field.

In January, I spoke in a league chapel service at Ambassador Baptist college. During this chapel service, I challenged the students to be like Ezekiel whom God made to be a watchman. Their League's name is the Watchmen. (A league is an affinity group similar to a Society group or Fraternity or Sorority, just within a Christian context.)

In January and by the end of February, I will have spoken in four churches to help build their Great Commission program by investing and being involved in delivering the Gospel.

Your giving helps us go. Your praying makes us useful. Your friendship sustains us.

Thank you,
John O'Malley
